Behavioral research suggests that the most effective people are those who understand themselves, both their strengths and weaknesses, so they can develop strategies to meet the demands of their environment.

A person's behavior is a necessary and integral part of who they are. In other words, much of our behavior comes from "nature" (inherent), and much comes from "nurture" (our upbringing). It is the universal language of "how we act," or our observable human behavior.

In this report we are measuring four dimensions of normal behavior. They are:

- how you respond to problems and challenges.
- how you influence others to your point of view.
- how you respond to the pace of the environment.
- how you respond to rules and procedures set by others.

This report analyzes behavioral style; that is, a person's manner of doing things. Is the report 100% true? Yes, no and maybe. We are only measuring behavior. We only report statements from areas of behavior in which tendencies are shown. To improve accuracy, feel free to make notes or edit the report regarding any statement from the report that may or may not apply, but only after checking with friends or colleagues to see if they agree.

Based on Sara's responses, the report has selected general statements to provide a broad understanding of her work style. These statements identify the basic natural behavior that she brings to the job. That is, if left on her own, these statements identify HOW SHE WOULD CHOOSE TO DO THE JOB. Use the general characteristics to gain a better understanding of Sara's natural behavior.

Sara may lose interest in a project once the challenge ceases. She may then be ready for another challenging project. She is a self-starter who likes new projects and is most comfortable when involved with a wide scope of activities. Most people see her as a high risk-taker. Her view is, "nothing ventured, nothing gained." She is forward-looking, aggressive and competitive. Her vision for results is one of her positive strengths. Many people see her as a self-starter dedicated to achieving results. She is often frustrated when working with others who do not share the same sense of urgency. She likes to be forceful and direct when dealing with others. Her desire for results is readily apparent to the people with whom she works. She has high ego strengths and may be viewed by some as egotistical. Sara is deadline conscious and becomes irritated if deadlines are delayed or missed. She wants to be viewed as self-reliant and willing to pay the price for success.

Sara will work long hours until a tough problem is solved. After it is solved, Sara may become bored with any routine work that follows. She prefers authority equal to her responsibility. She is a good problem solver and troubleshooter, always seeking new ways to solve old problems. When faced with a tough decision, she will try to sell you on her ideas. Sara has the unique ability of tackling tough problems and following them through to a satisfactory conclusion. She finds it easy to share her opinions on solving work-related problems. Many people see her decisions as high-risk decisions. However, after the decision is made, she tends to work hard for a successful outcome. Sometimes she may be so opinionated about a particular problem that she has difficulty letting others participate in the process.

Sara may lack the patience to listen and communicate with slower acting people. She may sometimes mask her feelings in friendly terms. If pressured, Sara's true feelings may emerge. Her creative and active mind may hinder her ability to communicate to others effectively. She may present the information in a form that cannot be easily understood by some people. She challenges people who volunteer their opinions. Sara likes people who give her options as compared to their opinions. The options may help her make decisions, and she values her own opinion over that of others! She likes people who present their case effectively. When they do, she can then make a quicker assessment or decision. She should exhibit more patience and ask questions to make sure that others have understood what she has said. She tends to be intolerant of people who seem ambiguous or think too slowly.

CHECKLIST FOR COMMUNICATING

Most people are aware of and sensitive to the ways with which they prefer to be communicated. Many people find this section to be extremely accurate and important for enhanced interpersonal communication. This page provides other people with a list of things to DO when communicating with Sara. Read each statement and identify the 3 or 4 statements which are most important to her. We recommend highlighting the most important "DO's" and provide a listing to those who communicate with Sara most frequently.

Do:

- Deal with details in writing, have her commit to modes of action.
- Present the facts logically; plan your presentation efficiently.
- Plan interaction that supports her dreams and intentions.
- Provide a warm and friendly environment.
- Motivate and persuade by referring to objectives and results.
- Leave time for relating, socializing.
- Stick to business--let her decide if she wants to talk socially.
- Ask specific (preferably "what?") questions.
- Ask for her opinions/ideas regarding people.
- Offer special, immediate and continuing incentives for her willingness to take risks.
- Provide ideas for implementing action.
- Use enough time to be stimulating, fun-loving, fast-moving.

DON'TS ON COMMUNICATING

This section of the report is a list of things NOT to do while communicating with Sara. Review each statement with Sara and identify those methods of communication that result in frustration or reduced performance. By sharing this information, both parties can negotiate a communication system that is mutually agreeable.

Don't:

- Be dictatorial.
- Ramble on, or waste her time.
- Be curt, cold or tight-lipped.
- Direct or order.
- Ask rhetorical questions, or useless ones.
- Try to build personal relationships.
- Legislate or muffle--don't overcontrol the conversation.
- Leave decisions hanging in the air.
- "Dream" with her or you'll lose time.
- Take credit for her ideas.
- Waste time trying to be impersonal, judgmental or too task-oriented.
- Come with a ready-made decision, or make it for her.

This section provides suggestions on methods which will improve Sara's communications with others. The tips include a brief description of typical people with whom she may interact. By adapting to the communication style desired by other people, Sara will become more effective in her communications with them. She may have to practice some flexibility in varying her communication style with others who may be different from herself. This flexibility and the ability to interpret the needs of others is the mark of a superior communicator.

This section identifies the ideal work environment based on Sara's basic style. People with limited flexibility will find themselves uncomfortable working in any job not described in this section. People with flexibility use intelligence to modify their behavior and can be comfortable in many environments. Use this section to identify specific duties and responsibilities that Sara enjoys and also those that create frustration.

- Nonroutine work with challenge and opportunity.
- Forum to express ideas and viewpoints.
- Freedom of movement.
- Democratic supervisor with whom she can associate.
- Freedom from controls, supervision and details.
- Tasks involving motivated groups and establishing a network of contacts.
- An innovative and futuristic-oriented environment.
- Assignments with a high degree of people contacts.
- Work tasks that change from time to time.

Sara sees her present work environment requiring her to exhibit the behavior listed on this page. If the following statements DO NOT sound job related, explore the reasons why she is adapting this behavior.

- Preferring people involvement over task focus.
- Flexibility.
- Exhibiting an active and creative sense of humor.
- Contacting people using a variety of modes.
- Meeting deadlines.
- Moving quickly from one activity to another.
- Coping with rapid changes in the work arena.
- Making tactful decisions.
- Participative decision making.
- Handling a variety of activities.
- Obtaining results through people.
- Motivating people to take action by using persuasive skills.
- Positive, outgoing, friendly behavior.

This section of the report was produced by analyzing Sara's wants. People are motivated by the things they want; thus wants that are satisfied no longer motivate. Review each statement produced in this section with Sara and highlight those that are present "wants."

Sara wants:

- Work assignments that provide opportunity for recognition.
- Outside activities so there is never a dull moment.
- A manager who practices participative management.
- A wide scope of activities.
- More time in the day.
- A friendly work environment.
- Flattery, praise, popularity and strokes.
- Participation in meetings on future planning.
- Group activities outside the job.
- Freedom from control and detail.
- Freedom to talk and participate on the team.
- To be trusted.
- Rewards to support her dreams.

In this section are some needs which must be met in order for Sara to perform at an optimum level. Some needs can be met by herself, while management must provide for others. It is difficult for a person to enter a motivational environment when that person's basic management needs have not been fulfilled. Review the list with Sara and identify 3 or 4 statements that are most important to her. This allows Sara to participate in forming her own personal management plan.

Sara needs:

- Participatory management.
- To handle routine paperwork only once.
- Better organization of record keeping.
- To adjust her intensity to match the situation.
- To be informed of things which affect her.
- To be confronted when in disagreement, or when she breaks the rules.
- To focus conversations on work activities--less socializing.
- More logical presentations--less emotional.
- An awareness of the parameters or rules in writing.
- To negotiate commitment face-to-face.
- To maintain focus on results and not sacrifice productivity just to make everyone happy.

AREAS FOR IMPROVEMENT

In this area is a listing of possible limitations without regard to a specific job. Review with Sara and cross out those limitations that do not apply. Highlight 1 to 3 limitations that are hindering her performance and develop an action plan to eliminate or reduce this hindrance.

Sara has a tendency to:

- Be so concerned with big picture; she forgets to see the little pieces.
- Be a one-way communicator--doesn't listen to the total story before introducing her opinion.
- Set standards for herself and others so high that impossibility of the situation is common place.
- Be impulsive and seek change for change's sake. May change priorities daily.
- Be inconsistent because of many stops, starts and ever-changing direction.
- Keep too many balls in the air, and if her support is weak she will have a tendency to drop some of those balls.
- Take on too much, too soon, too fast.

The Success Insights® Wheel is a powerful tool popularized in Europe. In addition to the text you have received about your behavioral style, the Wheel adds a visual representation that allows you to:

- View your natural behavioral style (circle).
- View your adapted behavioral style (star).
- Note the degree you are adapting your behavior.
- If you filled out the Work Environment Analysis, view the relationship of your behavior to your job.

Notice on the next page that your Natural style (circle) and your Adapted style (star) are plotted on the Wheel. If they are plotted in different boxes, then you are adapting your behavior. The further the two plotting points are from each other, the more you are adapting your behavior.

If you are part of a group or team who also took the behavioral assessment, it would be advantageous to get together, using each person's Wheel, and make a master Wheel that contains each person's Natural and Adapted style. This allows you to quickly see where conflict can occur. You will also be able to identify where communication, understanding and appreciation can be increased.
